

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A digital broadcast signal of a channel received in a tuner is converted into digital data by a digital demodulation section. Based on the digital data, a CPU detects the partial of the corresponding 5 subchannel from the whole transport stream (TS) of the digital data and causes a system controller to extract digital data of the subchannel and record the digital data on a hard disk in a predetermined format.